provide plans and specifications for the building of metal, stone and gravel roads in Kentucky, where State aid is granted. He shall provide a form of application for State aid which he shall furnish upon application to the various fiscal courts of the counties. In the specifications of roads he shall establish the grade, and he shall also have advisory power in regard to the maintenance of roads in the various counties of the Commonwealth. He shall keep a record in his office of all applications for State aid and he shall also keep a record of all roads built and the cost of same under the provisions of this act. It shall be the duty of the highway commissioner to inspect all roads built under this act and approve the same before the State aid money for the construction is paid. The State commissioner shall give a bond, the amount and character of same to be fixed and approved by the Governor of Kentucky.

Section 3. There shall be a tax levy not to exceed 5 cents on the $100 of the assessable property of Kentucky for the purpose of aiding
the several counties in the building of metal, stone and gravel roads or
the construction of same.

Section 4. No county shall receive
State aid for the building of metal,
stone and gravel roads in the said
county until the Fiscal Court of said county shall make application for same to the highway commissioner.
Section 5. The State shall pay
one-half of the cost of the construction of said metal, stone and gravel highways built by State aid and the county shall pay the other half.

Section 6. No county under this act shall be entitled in any one year
to over 2 per cent. of the total amount collected in the State for the road purposes in this act. No county shall receive State aid a second time until State aid has been granted to all other counties applying for same in that year.

Section 7. No county shall receive the benefit of State aid in the building of metal, stone and gravel highways unless said county has first levied and provided for a county tax
for the maintenance of roads in the county of not less than 10 cents on the $100 and each Fiscal Court in the State of Kentucky shall have the right to make a levy of not exceeding 40 cents on the $100 for the maintenance of the roads of the several counties.

Section 8. That the State highway commissioner shall draw his warrant on the State Treasurer in the disbursement of this fund, and the same shall be paid by the State Treasurer to the County Treasurer
of the several counties, and counties
where there is no County Treasurer
to a person appointed by the Fiscal Court to receive the same. The person so designated shall be required to give bond fixed and approved by the County Judge for the amount he receives.

Section 9. In the event that the applications for State aid exceed the amount collected by this tax, and as restricted by previous sections of this act, then the State highway commissioner shall equalize the funds between the counties applying.

Section 10. All acts or parts of acts, in conflict with this are hereby repealed.

SOLDIERS PREPARED FOR AN ALL-WINTER SIEGE

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 2.—Equipment to make them comfortable
through the winter has been received and put into use by the soldiers who are guarding Milton Oliver at his home in Lyon county. Oliver has confessed that he was a member of the night riders, and his testimony
is relied upon largely by the prosecution in the trials to come here of six of the alleged leaders in the raid upon this city. One night last May he was wounded by a charge of huckshot fired at him by an enemy,
and since then soldiers have guarded
him constantly.

These soldiers have now been provided with the regulation army tents
that are round in shape and are fitted with a stove for heating during the cold weather. They have also been supplied with heavy clothing,
and are ready for the exposure that must come to them.

run no more camp until that time. If

A HEAVY TOLL OF HUMAN LIFE

Marked Disasters Occurring in 1910.

COSTA RICA'S AWFUL QUAKE

Was the Most Fatal—Tragedies in Various Parts of the World.

LIST OF THE MAIN CASUALTIES

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 1.—The year
1910 shows fewer great disasters than previous recent years, but enough were recorded to emphasize the weakness of man against the great forces of nature and his imperfect guardianship against accidents.

Greatest of the year's disasters
was the earthquake in Costa Rica,
which destroyed the city of Cartago,
killing 1,800 deaths and the wounding of almost as many people. More than 10,000 survivors were made homeless and starvation and pestilence followed in the wake of the great calamity. This was the only earthquake of very serious results
during the year.

Next to the Costa Rica disaster in fatal results was the destruction
caused by floods near Tokyo, Japan, early in August. More than 1,000
lives were lost and 100,000 persons were made homeless. The damage to the rice crop was estimated at $4-500,000. Floods caused great destruction in Europe.

Forest fires in the United States
caused immense damage to property and the loss of many lives. These fires were so extensive in Montana
and Idaho that in August the War Department sent soldiers to aid in the work of fighting the fires, which destroyed more than 100,000 acres.
The most notable of the fires of the year in cities was that which destroyed a great part of the Brussels
Exposition, causing a loss of more than $10,000,000, August 14. A fire in a dance hall in Hungary,
March 28, brought death to more than 300 persons.

Avalanche and cloudburst in the vicinity of Naples, Italy, October 24,
brought death to 200 and immense damage to property. July 23 a cyclone killed 60, and caused property losses of many millions of dollars at Milan, Italy.

The most serious mine disaster of the year was that at Palau, Mexico, October 1, in which 200 men were entombed by an explosion. January 31 about 75 miners lost their lives
in a coal mine explosion at Primero, Colo. February 1 a gas explosion in the Browder Coal Mine, near Drakeboro, Ky., killed 34.

April 23 a gas explosion in a coal
mine near Amsterdam, Ohio, killed 18. May 5 a mine explosion near Birmingham, Ala., caused 70 deaths.
May 12 a explosion in the Wellington
Coal Mine, near Manchester,
England, killed 137.

The most fatal marine disaster of the year was the foundering of the Japanese steamer Tetsurei, off Chin-
do, Korea, in which 210 of the 250 passenger were drowned. Almost as heavy a toll was exacted by the sea in the foundering of the French steamship, General Chanzy, off the Island of Lingra—168 lives.

Few railroad disasters were of magnitude in 1910. January 21 a passenger train on the Canadian Pacific Railway plunged into the Spanish river near Sudbury, Ont., 40 or more persons being killed. March 2
there were 5 killed in the wreck of a Rock Island passenger train near Green Mountain, Iowa.

March 2 more than 100 persons were killed by the burying of a Great Northern Railroad train under an avalanche in a gorge near Wellington, Wash.

The explosion of 3,000 pounds of dynamite in the barracks of the Rural Guards at Pinar del Rio, Cuba, killed 100 soldiers.

Where Buying and Selling of Votes Has Been Regular Business.

INVESTIGATIONS TO CONTINUE

West Union, O., Dec. 30.—A dozen men, when Judge Blair opened
court to-day, tramped into the court room, and, without the least evidence of shame, confessed that they had sold their votes for trifling sums.

Seventy-three true bills, the smallest day's work for a long while, were reported by the grand jury to-day,
bringing the total indictments up to 1,071. Of this number 377 have already pleaded guilty. Forty men, uninvited and likewise as yet, un-
indicted, have come to the court house
to enter guilty pleas, not knowing whether or not the grand jury had reported their names and not wishing to take any chance at appearing to be in the least dilatory.

They simply wished to clear their skirts. Judge Blair said to-day that the investigation is going to continue and that it may be two or three months before it is concluded.

Although the county will have a new prosecutor, in the person of Frank Shively, the first of the year,
it was announced that the present
corps of attorneys will continue in charge of the investigation. A few men, knowing that the court "has the goods" on them, have left the county. If they are caught it is expected it will go hard with them.

"Why are you men so willing to rush to the court house to plead guilty?" was asked of one of the vote sellers.

"There are two reasons," was the answer. "In the first place, we know the court has the goods on us. In the second place, we know Judge
Blair; that he is a man of his word.
If he says we will get immunity, we know we will get it. We have had experience with him before."

Judge Blair has adopted a uniform scale in dealing with those who plead guilty. He assesses a fine of $25 and immediately suspends $20
of the fine to be held over the head of the accused for any future offense.
He also hands out a six-months
workhouse sentence, which is suspended and held for future reference. The third section of the penalty is a life-years' disfranchisement,
which is absolute.

The harter of ballots, which flourished until it became an institution, carried no cringe of conscience with
it. As a result, tears are being shed
in dozens of homes and the specter of poverty stalks those who, by degrading their franchise to the depths, sought to place themselves on the heights of political influence in their country communities.

As an instance: A widowed mother of a first voter came into Court from Peebles, one of the principal towns in the county, and told to-day
how she had sold her son's vote for $5. She wept for the Court's mercy.

Another instance: Among the voters who confessed they had tainted their citizenship to-day were men who had voted for Lincoln and boys who cast their ballots for Harding and Harmon.

One farmer in Jacksonville predicted that on a recent election day he had thrice hartered his vote away, each sale to a different interest.

In Manchester, a manufacturing
town, the shops are closed and home
hoards of cash are depleted after the season of gift-giving and holiday extravagance. It is a problem with many where to raise the $12-$35
fine and $7 costs—which they must pay—are their workhouse sentences
are remitted.

The record of chattel mortgages
filed in the court books shows that many of those who have confessed vote bartering have mortgaged their household goods to raise money to pay their fines. In one place the family cow was so placed in pawn to procure liberty.

In the confession of one Jacksonville product farmer, who came in

from Meigs Township, the jury was startled to learn that he got $12.50 for voting the straight Republican ticket, $10 for voting the straight Democratic ballot and $3 for voting for a particular candidate. He pleaded guilty when arraigned, and received the usual $5 and costs, six months' workhouse sentence and five years' disfranchisement, with the prison sentence suspended.

Reform of the criminal code so that a man who offers his vote for sale can be punished equally with the man who gets his price, is advocated by Judge Blair in connection with the Adams county scandal.

SPECIAL NOTICE
In regard to
OBITUARIES, RESOLUTIONS
OF RESPECT, &c.
○○○○○○○○○○○○○○○○○○○○

The Hartford Herald has adopted
a new rule in regard to Obituaries,
Resolutions of Respect, Cards of Thanks, &c., whether written at the behest of lodges, churches or individuals, and that is, we shall charge at the rate of two cents per line for all such articles, except obituary poetry, which will be one cent per word, straight. This is the smallest rate we charge for anything and is only one-fifth of our regular rate.
The amount, in cash or stamps,
must accompany each article, or
it will not be printed. Six words average a line in ordinary reading and every separate character or initial letter counts as a word. The heading and the signature both count one line each,
even if they are only a word or two.
All obituary poetry, straight
through, one cent per word.

Our old rule in regard to Obituaries, &c. was 150 words free, balance
a cent a word, but this did not prove satisfactory because the bounds were almost always overstepped, and we have been forced to adopt this new rule, which is in effect from now on.
Contributors will please remember.

"MISS SHERIFF" ASSUMES HER OFFICIAL DUTIES

Uniontown, Penn., Dec. 31.—Fayette county, the most mountainous
and uncouth part of Pennsylvania,
has a female Deputy Sheriff—a young woman who can speak several languages and can use a gun and who will use it if necessary. Miss Lucy Johns, daughter of Sheriff P.
A. Johns, graduate of the Mary Bal-win School, at Stunton, Va., was sworn into office as Deputy Sheriff
to-day, and assumed her duties at once.

"Miss Sheriff" Johns, as she insists on being called, had for some time insisted that she be given this office, the duties of which are filled with excitement. To-day Sheriff Johns found to his consternation
that his pretty daughter could shoot
almost as well as he.

"I certainly hope I'll never have to use my revolver," said Miss Sheriff Johns to-day, "but if I do I will use it right. I know the duties incumbent on a Sheriff, and when we officers have to shoot, why we will shoot, won't we, papa?"

SAYS MRS. EDDY WILL RISE FROM THE DEAD

New York, Dec. 31.—In the first interview Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, formerly a director of the First Church of Christ Scientist in this city, has given since the death of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, she made the positive statement to-night that she expected Mrs. Eddy will yet "demonstrate" over death.

"I believe," she said, "that Mrs.
Eddy will make manifestation; that she will reveal herself to me and others of the outside world. The same situation exists to-day as when Jesus of Nazareth was buried.

"After three days he manifested
Himself to prove that there is life after death. Mrs. Eddy will do the same, for she occupies in the world
of to-day precisely the same position that Jesus occupied in His day.
"It may take longer for Mrs. Eddy to pass through the experience of material death to a demonstration of everlasting life; it may not occur
for years, or it may occur to-morrow; but she will manifest herself
and all men shall know of it."

A. S. of E. Notice.

The meeting of the Ohio County
Union, A. S. of E., will occur in Hartford next Friday and Saturday, January 6 and 7, 1911. All the members are urged to be present, as important business will be transacted.

SILAS STEVENS, Pres.

JOHN B. MOISANT AND ARCH HOSSEY

Dashed to Death, Victims of Treacherous Air.

AIR CRAZE NOW CLAIMS 35

In Harvest of Death—Los Angeles and New Orleans
Fatal Cities

BOTH DIE IN SAME MANNER

St. Louis, Dec. 31.—John B. Moisant and Arch Hoxsey, aviators extraordinary, were killed to-day. Both fell out of the treacherous air with their machines, neither from a great height, and Moisant's remaining minutes of life were so few as to count
as, naught. Hoxsey was killed instantly.

Moisant met death at 9:55 a. m.,
while attempting to alight in a field
a few miles from New Orleans.

Hoxsey, who went into the air in the afternoon at Los Angeles, lay at 2:12 o'clock, a broken, crushed, lifeless mass in plain view of the thousands, who were watching the aviation tournament.

Thus the last day of 1910, in bringing the total number of deaths,
of those who have sought to fly, to thirty-five, capped the list with the most illustrious of aviators, who have been writing the history of aviation in the sky of two continents.

Arch Hoxsey, who only within the week had set a new world's altitude record of 11,474 feet, ran afoul of a shifty, boiling, treacherous wind
when only a matter of 500 feet in the air and a minute later the horrified crowd, aroused from the shock,
was rushing madly to where the broken mass of humanity lay beneath a canvass and some broken
spars.

Both Moisant and Hoxsey met
death in almost the same manner.
Each machine was headed for earth
and suddenly seemed to stop, hover
in the air, then turn over onto its
"nose" and dive headlong to the ground.

Mrs. C. M. Hoxsey, of Pasadena,
California, missed by a mere accident seeing her son meet his death.
Arch Hoxsey came into national prominence on October 11 when he took up for a short flight, Theodore Roosevelt, who was then visiting
this city.

He had been in the air only one hour and a half to-day, when the accident occurred.

While preparing to make a landing on the special field selected for the Michelin cup trial, eleven miles north of New Orleans, along the banks of the Mississippi river, Moisant was thrown from a Bleriot monoplane and landed on his head, thirty-
six feet from where the machine struck the ground. His neck was broken by the fall. Otherwise there was not a bruise on his body.

His neck was broken in the cervical region, producing death within ten seconds, according to the coroner. The moment Moisant struck the earth, falling in high weeds to the right of the field, several workmen,
who happened to be there, picked
him up while the pressmen and officials rushed to him.

Wind was the cause of the accident. Moisant, guided by the white flags which lined the course, rounded the circle twice in an effort to find a landing place. The third time around the wind, which was blowing about fifteen miles across
the course, drove the machine to the earth.

SWORE OFF SWEARING AT MIDNIGHT HOUR

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 28.—
Three hundred Masons, as the clock
struck the midnight hour last night,
registered a vow in honor of St.
John's day, never again to use profane language. The vow was taken at the banquet table in the new Consistory Temple in this city, at the suggestion of Grand Master Frederick Craig, of Des Moines, who was the guest of honor and principal speaker of the evening. The banquet last night was the first meeting held by members of the order in the new Consistory Temple, just completed at a cost of $50,000.

May the New Year Bring You Happiness and Prosperity

NEW YEAR'S EVE IN NEW YORK CITY

YOU couldn't drag a New York man out of town on New Year's eve, and the only trips he will plan are auto rides in some sequestered locality late on the afternoon of the 1st, so that he can get fresh air and perfect quiet. As for the New York hostesses, when they are arranging for diners it is with the understanding that the party shall go later to the theater and still later

ENJOYING THEMSELVES.

Join the throng which is bent on turning night into day, for no day was ever like New Year's eve in Manhattan now, but into a cross between Mardi Gras, a bullfight and a football game, with dashes of a Coney Island festival and a queen's birthday.

There is one time honored custom of New Year's eve which will not be cut out, that of going to old Trinity, where the chimes will be rung, but there will be a change even in this. Albert Melash, the bell ringer, who had officiated for thirty years, is dead, and a Columbia undergraduate is in his place.

At the big hotels and restaurants it is estimated that between 1,000 and 2,000 people will be accommodated by each. Tables have been engaged for weeks, and the demand is so great that all the rooms usually reserved for drawing rooms are to be furnished with supper tables.

In regard to specific arrangements it is the mode at present to have everything at the hotel table as delicately fine as if one were entertaining at one's own home. If a dish is served that can be carved on the table the hostess wishes to supervise it, and any chafing dish article must have the finishing touches put in by her. Often she will make the salad dressing, all with the notion to give the appearance of the private entertaining with the public environment.

"The old time favorites, canyashack and terrapin, are no longer named by those ordering in advance or by the chef who prepares the regular menu for such occasions," said a hotel manager. "These articles of food are difficult to procure, expensive, and, besides, tastes have changed."

"The favorite supper dish now is some kind of shellfish daintily prepared so that one can hardly recognize its flavor. The approved menu is caviare or oysters on the shell, a consommé or clam broth en tasse, an entree of sweetbreads, frogs' legs, lobster a la Newburg, game and salad and ices with delicious cakes."

Chrysanthemums and American hostesses lead in the matter of floral decorations, with the usual holiday

GOING TO OLD TRINITY.

background of greens, holly and mistletoe berries and red ribbons. Carnations are also favorites. Many of the reserved tables will have special decorations of flowers and souvenirs sent by the entertainers. One hostess has ordered an elaborate centerpiece of orchids, with orchids for the women and gardenias for the men.

Some of the hotels will not make rules in regard to the kind of liquid refreshment served. If one wishes a cup of tea at 2 a. m. at these places he can get it. But at many of the hotels and restaurants nothing but champagne will be served after a stated hour.

Though the occasion seems to spell license, this is not really the case. The proprieties to a certain point are to be rigidly adhered to. A woman, for example, may drink all the champagne and cocktails she wants, but if she attempts to light a cigarette she will be asked to desist.

Taking care of a big restaurant or hotel crowd, it is learned, is not so difficult as it sounds. When one of a party becomes boisterous the head waiter asks the assistance of his own party in keeping him in order, which is usually given with decision. One of the Broadway restaurants which will display the sign "Champagne Only After 10 o'clock" also offers the explanation that the reason for this is that a crowd champagne fed is merely hilarious and good natured, but when highballs and mixed drinks are served there is always trouble afoot for the management.

The price for the table d'hôte suppers will be about the same in all the first class places. The hotels that do not place an embargo on wine usually go further and serve their patrons a la carte, as much or as little as may be required. The regular sum charged is $5 for the menu prepared without wine. In the grill rooms, wine vaults, extra supper rooms, less desirable in location, some of the hotels will serve a $4 supper and a few offer a very attractive menu for $3.

Besides the hotel and restaurant celebrations most of the clubs will keep open house. The National Arts club will have a special reception for the members, and the members of the Players club, next door on Gramercy park, always foregather, no matter what other attractions there may be, to celebrate founders' night. The loving cup is passed around, a custom inaugurated by Edwin Booth, and after that the doings are wrapped in impenetrable mystery.

The New Year's eve celebration will by no means be limited to the restaurants, hotels and clubs, although they perhaps furnish the most picturesque and interesting elements of the celebration. Broadway will add its decorative features, and hundreds of thousands of people will rush back and forth, if the night be fine, enjoying themselves by watching the fun of other people doing the same thing.

QUAINT NEW YEAR CUSTOM.

Feast of Asas of the Middle Ages Still Celebrated.

In certain parts of southern France New Year's eve is still celebrated by the famous feast of asas of the middle ages. Before the congregation is admitted to the church a great glowing brazier is placed in the nave, upon the stone floor, and a broad path from the entrance of the church to the altar is roped off.

The ceremony begins with a procession of men made up to represent various Biblical characters. At its head walk two priests singing an old Provencal hymn. When the procession reaches the center of the church six men dressed as Jews of the time of Christ step forward on one side and six gentlemen on the other. Two advocates stand between them.

"The Lord is made man," the gentlemen exclaim.

To this the Jews reply, with scornful demand for proofs. The advocates then summon the prophets and legislators of the Old Testament. One by one the great personages of the past—Moses, Aaron, Isaiah, Daniel and many more—slowly advance up the aisle and, pausing for a moment in the glare of the brazier, bear witness to "the divinity of Jesus and then pass on into the darkness."

But the principal figure of the ceremony is Balaam's ass, from which the feast takes its name. The ass, under whose voluminous trappings a child is concealed, bears Balaam up the aisle and when beaten by his master rebukes him in a piteous voice through the medium of the concealed child, just as the ass did the real Balaam in the Bible story.

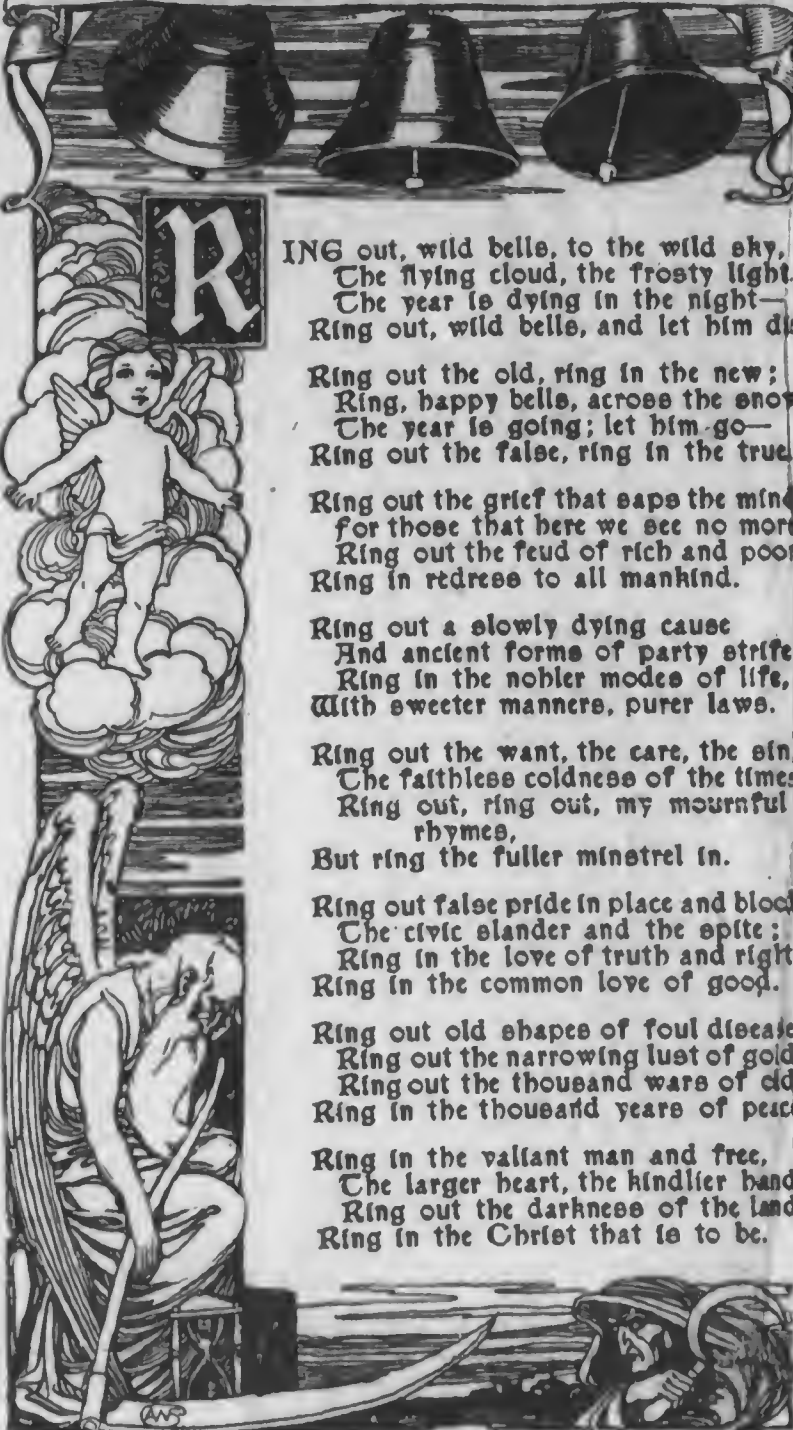

The last personage of the procession is usually Judas, who constitutes the tragic feature of the quaint festival.

New Year's in Europe.

In London New Year's day is observed with little formality, but in the capitals of the continent it is a day for official receptions.

RING OUT WILD BELLS

BY ALFRED TENNYSON

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
The flying cloud, the frosty light:
The year is dying in the night—
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new;
Ring, happy bells, across the snow.
The year is going; let him go—
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor;
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife;
Ring in the nobler modes of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out the want, the care, the sin,
The faithless coldness of the times;
Ring out, ring out, my mournful rhymes,
But ring the fuller minstrel in.

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right;
Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease;
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old;
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land;
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

WASHINGTONIAN NEW YEAR.

Recipe For Reception a la George and Martha.

To hold a New Year's reception a la George and Martha Washington the drawing room should be arranged to look like that of a century ago. Let holly and mistletoe festoon doors and arches and be massed with pine and hemlock and other evergreens knotted with cherry colored ribbons.

The gowns and headresses of the ladies invited to attend may be copied from old fashioned prints or reproductions of portraits of historic belles. The old brocades, the powdered hair and complexion patches will transform the appearance of modern beaux and belles in a manner truly wonderful. A few lines pencilled on the face will aid in suggesting the appearance of the individual whose personality is to be represented. Every guest should be at liberty to select the character most pleasing to himself or herself. Of course this choice should preclude the characters of Washington and his wife, which belong to the host and the hostess. If they have a son and daughter, Jack and Nelly Custis should be represented by their son and daughter.

The minut will, of course, be the first dance, and it should be led by the host and hostess in the costumes of Washington and his wife. If other than buffet refreshments are served, the host takes to the dining room the most distinguished lady present—that is, the one whose position in the society of the time represented was most important. The hostess takes the most distinguished gentleman to the dining room. The selection, of course, will be largely influenced by personal feeling.

In the center of the dining room table a handsome decoration representing a chime of bells bearing aloft a silver star and the figures denoting the date of the new year should be placed on a bank of green or of flowers. Ribbon streamers, red, white and blue, should extend to the edge of the supper table, where waxen cherubs, such as are made for decorations on the top of a Christmas tree, perch among the little cluster of flowers intended as souvenirs for guests. A knot of red, white and blue ribbon should tie the flowers intended for the ladies. If individual menus are prepared each may be given a personal significance by being inscribed with a verse relative to the flight of time. Any dictionary of quotations will supply the lines.

The dining room ought to be lighted entirely with wax candles in handsomeandelabra.

GIVING NEW YEAR'S GIFTS.

All France Buys Itself Poor in Bestowing Presents.

The custom of making New Year's gifts has gone completely out of vogue among the people of the United States, with the exception perhaps of the very wealthy, who can afford to give on all occasions.

In France New Year's day, or Le Jour d'Etrennes (literally, day of gifts), is the greatest day of the whole year. All France buys itself poor. The men are supposed to give bouquets and flowers to every lady upon whom they call, and Jan. 2 finds women sick from eating sweetmeats and merrily from spending more than they could well afford, but the average Frenchman believes in the old observation that it is "all in a lifetime," or, according to our vernacular, that "Christmas (New Year in France) comes but once a year."

The practice of making presents on New Year's day was originated by the Romans and from them taken up by the Britons.

When gloves were novelties and luxuries that every woman wanted, but not every one could afford, they were the customary gifts often very handsome ones made of silk and decorated with gold traceries and precious stones. Occasionally a sum of money was given instead of the gloves, the donor designating the gift as "glove money." Queen Elizabeth was especially fond of stockings as a New Year's gift.

Sir Thomas More when lord chancellor once decided a case in favor of a lady, who, to show her gratitude, sent Sir Thomas a pair of gloves containing forty gold coins. Sir Thomas returned the gold with this note: "Mistress—Since it were against good manners to refuse your New Year's gift I am content to take your gloves, but as for the lining—I utterly refuse it."

When pins were not invented and brought into use about the beginning of the sixteenth century they were highly prized as New Year's gifts. They, too, were made of very valuable material—of gold and silver, as well as of the common metals. The money which had been expended in gloves was then made use of for pins, and money given for the purchase of the new style gift was called "pin money." The term has gradually enlarged its meaning, and now the modern girl speaks of her "pin money," but she buys all sorts of things with it and instead of receiving it from friends once a year, she gets it from papa once a month or once a week.

THE SAD FATE OF A RESOLUTIONIST

THE New Year's resolutionist is thinking hard these days, smoking against time to get rid of his Christmas cigars and get himself as full of nicotine as possible before joining the anti-tobacco league, making memoranda of the errors of his ways during the past year and buying nice, fat, inviting journals, with 365 white pages and a cover of red leather, lettered in gold.

The New Year's resolution habit is one of those things that won't be snubbed out of fashion, as Valentine's day, New Year's calls and other ancient institutions have been. It is an instructive proceeding, this making of promises, signaling of pledges and taking the vows. It shows up one's weaknesses and one's strength to all and sundry, but especially to the signer of pledges and maker of promises himself. It proves that two-thirds of the world's resolutions, like pie crust, are made to be broken, and occasionally it awakens up dormant pride and principles in some weak willed individual and sets him strenuously on his legs.

But the success attained by the man who keeps his resolution unbroken through the year is sometimes of doubtful value. It puffs him up with pride, conceit and intolerance. Having accomplished his feat of strength, he has no patience with the weaker vessels who fall by the wayside—to put it Hibernianly.

One such individual resolved one New Year's day in the flower of his youth to take a cold plunge every morning.

He considered cold plunges good for health and good discipline for a lazy

HE WOULD BRAG AND HE WOULD LEOTURE and sleep loving body. He lived down south when he began his early morning aquatic performances, but later he came north to live, and he kept right on plunging head first into a cold tub every morning, winter or summer.

He kept this up for years, and his vigor and blood were splendid advertisements for the benefits of the cold plunge habit and incidentally to his strength of will in acquiring and sticking to such a habit.

But he had the weakness of his strength. He would brag, and he would lecture people who did not like cold plunges or else took them only six months of the year. As the years went by he got more and more vigorous and more and more impatient with complaining, late rising, cold catching persons who would not be converted to his ways.

"I rise every morning at 6," he used to tell every one who could be prevailed upon to listen to him. "Then I draw the tub full of cold water—the colder the better. Then I plunge in, and in ten minutes I am ready to dress after a violent rubdown with the roughest crash in the market. And do I ever have a cold? Am I ever ill? I haven't had a pain or an ache in thirty years, and I am never in bed after 6 o'clock a. m."

Perhaps it is cruel to tell, but it is a positive relief to his friends one morning he was found in bed at 11:30. The coroner had been dead five hours, blamed it all on his cold plunge at 6. He then and taken his said, he never would

ystery in the Murder of Henry Thompson.

VERY PROBABLE MOTIVE

appeared from Store in

Till 4 O'clock.

THEORY IS SCOUTED

Madison, Ky., Dec. 30.—Henry Thompson, president of the Provisional department store and one of the wealthiest and best known merchants in Western Kentucky, was found murdered and robbed in a desolate wooded hillside at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The killing is the most mysterious that the officials here have ever had to deal with. There are two bullet holes in the back, and his head and one in the right eye. Dr. A. O. Williams, in testimony before the magistrate, tonight that it would have been impossible for Thompson to have killed himself because any of the three would have been instantly fatal.

Only clue so far developed is that of Mrs. Mannie Benton, who said she shot and saw three men going toward the cemetery along the side of the road. The killing is supposed to have taken place this morning at 9 o'clock. The body was found by a searching party which started out at noon when Thompson's absence from his store and home was noticed. He was 47 years of age and was said to have good habits. He has a wife, and two daughters. Thompson left home at about 7 o'clock this morning and went to his store where he inquired for his son, who had spent the night with a boy chum. Magistrate G. G. Sigler was one of the several people who saw Thompson in the store and talked with him this morning. The magistrate says Mr. Thompson looked at papers and pronounced them correct. He appeared normal in all respects.

Thompson is said to have left his store at 9 o'clock and started toward the cemetery, where he was killed at a place by Lige Williams.

MAN WHO MADE MANY MILLIONS

Says He Owes His Success
to His wife.

HER GRIT AND PERSEVERANCE

Encouraged Him to Continue
Until Great Wealth
Was Attained.

THE STORY OF AN OIL KING

Pittsburg, Penn., Dec. 31.—Asked by a newspaper for an expression as to what person, incident or combination of circumstances he considered he owed his success, Joseph C. Trees, head of the oil company which has just sold its Louisiana oil holdings alone for $90,000,000, answered without hesitation: "To my wife is due my success."

And then the Oil King, football player, &c., who has just given his old school, the University of Pittsburg, a $200,000 stadium, unfolded a remarkable story of the grit and foresight of his wife. Fourteen years ago she picked him up when he was down and out and by her grit insisted that he go on groping for oil, assuring him that he was sure to make a success, that he could not fail, &c. And he went on and made the success.

According to Tree's own statement, 14 years ago he had already drilled eight wells, all of them dry, and had decided to work as a laborer for the rest of his life, as it would take him all that time to pay the debts he had incurred in sinking the eight dry holes, but the little wife would not let him give up. Trees says:

"I went home that day and said to my wife, 'It's all over, little girl. She's come in a duster. We're done for. We'll go back home and I'll get work and do just as I used to.' But she said, 'No, no, we can't stop now. We are not beaten yet. Try again, Joe, just once more.'"

It was in vain, according to the Oil King, that he tried to argue with his wife that all the money he had in the world was gone, that he was in debt, &c. She insisted that he make arrangements to drill one more well. He went out next morning and managed to secure a working interest in what was known as the Proxy lease. He located and drilled a well on it which came in strong. It did not make a fortune for himself and his partners, but it was enough to get him back on his feet. Once started upward, "Joe" Trees could not be stopped with such a wife.

Remarkable Market Reports.

Nothing gives a newspaper a firmer place in public confidence than a well-established reputation for accurate and complete reports of the world's markets. Business men throughout the West have long esteemed The Chicago Record-Herald for the uniformly trustworthy way in which it covers the whole field of financial and commercial news. Whether you want to know what consols are worth in London or what railroad stocks are quoted at in New York, what price corn is bringing in Kansas City or how wheat is selling at Minneapolis or Chicago, you can always turn to the financial and commercial pages of the Record-Herald with the certainty of getting the latest facts in full and unbiased form.

The men who write the local live stock, board of trade and financial news for The Record-Herald are experienced staff editors whose years of trusted acquaintance with leading men often give them inside tips on important news in advance of other papers. The only morning newspaper in Chicago having its own special correspondent to cover the New York stock market is The Record-Herald. George S. Beachel's daily telegraphic reports from the stock and money markets of Wall street are models of insight and accuracy. The Record-Herald makes it a point to cover in full the financial reports of corporations and banking activities of Chicago and the West. The "Speculative Gossip" and notes of Wall street and LaSalle street happenings are valued by the largest brokers for their glimpses of real "inside history" of the various markets.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4

China won't be up to date until it has more laws than people.

The Republican party still retains the championship for large corrupt campaign funds.

Anyhow, the tariff can't protect the divorce mills of the country as infant industries.

Sometimes, in climbing the ladder of fame, a fellow reaches out and finds a rung missing.

It is said that letter writing is becoming a lost art, except the specimens produced in divorce courts.

It is yet a question as to whether a New Year's Resolution has much to do with the world growing better.

About the on lyfellow who gets credit for tooting his own horn nowadays is the man who runs an automobile.

A society belle has been appointed deputy sheriff at Uniontown, Pa. To be plinched by an officer like that will no doubt be a distinct pleasure.

An Evansville (Ind.) man wants a divorce because his wife insists on bathing her pet dog in the bathtub. Plainly he is one of those ill bred sort of fellows who does not recognize the insalienable rights of the modern queen of the kitchen.

Mr. Harry Lehr, the well known and wealthy society man of Newport, has been taken to a sanitarium at Baltimore for treatment for nervous prostration. Poor Harry! The stunts he went through in the name of "society" were enough to transport most any man to the bug-house years ago.

A circular letter has been addressed to the authorities at Washington by those having in charge the digging of the Panama Canal in which they complain bitterly of the poetic effusions of Maurice H. Thatcher, Governor of the Canal Zone. They say he writes poetry without any provocation and most of it is of the very worst sort. The Government ought to use its best efforts to stop this terrible outrage upon helpless employees.

Mr. Graham Vreeland has retired as managing editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, to be succeeded by Mr. Harrison Robertson as general editorial manager. Mr. Vreeland goes into more lucrative employment. Mr. Robertson has been with the Courier-Journal for many years, filling the posts of managing editor and editorial writer, having in special care the editorial page. The change will in no wise affect the splendid efficiency of the Courier-Journal as a great newspaper.

It was caused to be reported over the State, before the meeting of the Democratic State Executive Committee, that the meeting would be only for a friendly interchange of ideas and that nothing would be done at that time only talk over party matters. That the Committee should meet and at once issue the edict of a primary election as the mode of selecting candidates for State offices, and this over the protest of a majority of the candidates themselves, certainly looks a little queer, to say the least. Was the affair all out and dried from the beginning?

In behalf of the small towns and the merchants doing business therein, a combined effort is being made by almost all the newspapers throughout the country against the proposed establishment of local rural parcels-post service. That this service would seriously cripple if not annihilate the small retailer of merchandise, seems plain. That it would at the same time enrich the retail mail-order houses of distant cities to the discomfiture of the home merchant, is equally evident. It would also heavily increase the present postal deficit. Parcels-post service would thwart the prosperity of country towns and merchants.

Prominent matrons of Trenton, N. J., have banded together for the purpose of preserving the integrity of the household, as they allege, and have issued an edict that all married men must wear rings on their thumbs as an indication or warning of their wedded state. Such curtailment of man's inherent rights is a terrible outrage. Hereafter every brave married man of Trenton, when he meets a pretty woman, must either keep his hands in his pockets or begin a series of wig-wag signs with his hands to warn off the fair one's smiles. It's a mortal shame—another blow to downtrodden beset-

Even in this modern day there perchance may be up some bigoted critic of the press as to its province as a newspaper. Some people would have nothing of a sensational nature (which is simply news out of the ordinary) printed, while others are always glad to read anything a newspaper may print until they or their relatives become concerned in some unsavory incident and then they want it suppressed. In the meantime the successful newspaper pursues the even tenor of its way, sure of its mission and what is expected of it, and regardless of any carping critic. It seldom seems to strike some people that perhaps the editor knows his business.

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER—THEIR AVAILABILITY

The Commoner receives a great many inquiries in regard to men whose names are being mentioned in connection with the Democratic Presidential nomination. It is not able to answer all questions but it will be pleased to answer where it can and to make inquiry where it is uncertain. Four persons are being mentioned with frequency—Folk, Gaynor, Harmon and Wilson, and their records are being examined.

Folk was an active supporter of Bryan and Sewell in 1896 and has supported the Democratic national ticket in all the Presidential campaigns since.

Mayor Gaynor has supported the national ticket in all campaigns. In 1896 he was conspicuous as a supporter of the Chicago platform—he was one of the few prominent Democrats in the East who stood up for the party creed and ticket—and he has been faithful ever since.

Governor Harmon, then a member of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, did not vote in 1896, but in 1900 presided at Mr. Bryan's meeting in Cincinnati.

Gov. Wilson supported Palmer and Buckner in 1896, but is supposed to have supported the Democratic national ticket in subsequent campaigns. The Commoner has no positive information as to the campaigns since 1896, but will be pleased to publish any authoritative information which any reader may have on the subject.—[Bryan's Commoner.]

PITMAN, FAMOUS FOUNDER OF SHORTHAND, DEAD

Ben Pitman, aged 89 years, one of the country's most famous citizens, died Wednesday night in his home at 1852 Columbia avenue, Cincinnati. Pitman was the founder of phonetic shorthand in America. He was also well known in art circles all over this country.

He was a national figure during and after the Civil War. He was one of the first shorthand reporters to be employed by the United States Government. For nearly a year he had been ill at his home, and some months ago he submitted to a very serious operation, from the effects of which he never recovered.

INCONSISTENCY THAT WAS EXTRAORDINARY

Was Shown in Recent Action of Democratic State Executive Committee.

In all the checkered history of Kentucky, there was never a more peculiar performance than that of the Kentucky State Executive Committee at its meeting in Louisville Thursday.

At one moment it voted for a primary for the selection of a State ticket, on the ground that this was the best and fairest means of getting the wishes of the people.

The very next moment it voted down a proposal to secure the choice of the people for United States Senator in a similar manner.

By voting down the latter proposition, the Democratic party of Kentucky splits upon the platforms of the party, turns its back upon the solemn promises, pledges and protestations of the organization in three different national conventions, and stamps itself as thoroughly reactionary.

If there is one thing more than another to which the Democracy stands pledged by its platforms and the speeches of its leaders, it is the popular election of Senators. Carrying out this principle, it would be the logical thing for the party to determine its senatorial nominee by party vote.

It is significant and educational to observe that the only ones who favored the senatorial primary were the friends of congressman Ollie James, while the ones who opposed it were the friends of Senator T. H. Paynter, former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, Harry Weissinger and J. C. Mayo.

Ollie James had the courage to come out in the open and demand that the party stand by its platform. None of his opponents had the courage to come out and advocate the reverse policy.

The inner meaning of the committee's action was elucidated by the remark in a reactionary Democratic paper that if there had been a popular primary, no one but James would have had a chance.

It was the friends of Paynter, Beckham, Mayo and Weissinger who opposed James' motion for a senatorial primary.

If the Democrats of Kentucky are alive to their own interests, the Post rather fancies that they will take the earliest opportunity to elect a progressive Legislature and insure the election of a progressive United States Senator, and not one "safe and sane" reactionary and satisfactory to big business.—[The Kentucky Post, Covington, Ky.]

HUGGED WIFE TOO HARD—ARRESTED AND FINED

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 31.—Jay Harr Jordan, a telegraph operator, was fined $200 to-day for hugging his wife so hard as to break two of her ribs. Jordan was arrested last night on complaint of his wife, who told a policeman that her husband was cruel to her.

"We have been married just a month," Jordan told the Court to-day. "A fortnight ago I tried to kiss my wife. I grasped her firmly to give her one good kiss. She tried to squirm away, and in the squirming cracked two ribs.

"A week ago she heard a girl say I was a nice-looking young man. That was the beginning of our quarrels, which ended with my wife calling the officers last night. Now she claims that I broke her ribs on purpose."

DEATH ROUTE SOUGHT WITH CARBOLIC ACID

Young Man Kills Himself Because Accused of a Small Theft.

Cloverport, Ky., Dec. 30.—Brooding over the fact that a warrant had been issued against him, charging him with having stolen a small lot of old iron of a probable value of fifty cents, Clarence Hurt, twenty-two years of age, drank about an ounce of carbolic acid, about 7:30 o'clock to-night and died thirty minutes later, before a physician reached him.

Hurt was a son of William Hurt and moved to this place last July from Leavenworth, Ind. Since coming to Cloverport he had been employed as a teamster. He is unmarried and is survived by his father, mother and several sisters and brothers.

Clarence Hurt and his brother, Emmet Hurt, aged eighteen years, stripped the rusty iron from an old buggy that they found on the Bates farm and which they thought had been abandoned by its former owner, who had moved all of his belongings from the farm some time before and had left only the buggy. It is not thought that the boys' idea was to commit any offense, but that they thought the vehicle had been permanently abandoned and that they might have the iron.

The owner of the buggy, learning that they had taken the iron, swore out the warrant charging them with stealing the iron. Emmet Hurt escaped to Indiana, while his older brother made way with himself by using the deadly poison.

A FEW WORDS CONCERNING THE BANK OF HARTFORD

In this issue of The Herald will be found a statement of the condition of the Bank of Hartford at the close of our semi-annual term, to which we respectfully invite your attention.

This bank was organized in the year 1882, being the first bank organized in this county. Since its organization there have been panics and many financial disturbances. Notwithstanding this fact, it has weathered the storms, and it is with a pardonable pride that we call attention to its present strong condition.

Besides the conservative management of a bank, there is an additional protection to its patrons, and that is a surplus account, which you will observe from our statement we are now enjoying.

It is the purpose of our directors to keep this bank clean, so that, at all times our depositors will be absolutely protected.

For many years it has been our custom to appoint a committee composed of two of our directors, who hold no other office in the bank, to count the cash and inspect our notes, and now we have the additional inspection of the State Bank Examiner, whose duty it is to make a careful examination of the bank twice a year. It is well known that the bill passed by our last Legislature creating the office of State Bank Examiner, was vetoed, and the Secretary of State invited banks to be examined notwithstanding this veto.

We accepted the Secretary of State's invitation, and on the 16th and 17th of last month this bank was thoroughly examined by his representative, who expressed himself as being pleased with our system and good condition.

We take this occasion to express our appreciation of the good will of our patrons who have aided us in our achievements and sincerely trust that the New Year will bring happiness and prosperity to all.

Respectfully,
J. W. FORD, President.

"LORD'S PRAYER" OF THE AGNOSTIC

A Curious Effusion of Modern Thought.

IS INTERROGATIVE IN FORM

Non-Committal in Sentiment and Half Accusing in Its Implications.

TEXT OF THE PRAYER IN FULL

Mrs. K. T. Woosley, of Kentucky, has received word from the Agnostic Association of Belgium and France that they have adopted her "New Lord's Prayer," which she delivered at the recent International Liberal League convention in Brussels, where she was the only delegate from America and the only woman delegate to the convention. The prayer is interrogative in form and decidedly non-committal in thought. In places it aims to give the Creator a few statistics quite in the manner of the preacher who prayed, "Oh Lord, Thou knowest of the Sunday papers."

The New Lord's Prayer is as follows:

"Oh, thou eternal, infinite matter, force, mind or whatever thou art, that men call God.

"If thou art just and loving and inclineth to peace, if thou delightest in the happiness and progress of thy children, why have the religions which seek to honor thee persecuted different creeds and soaked the earth with each other's blood?"

"Why have they inflicted ostracism, ruin or death upon all teachers of truth coming into their power?"

"Why have they presented an unbroken phalanx against every phase of social progress?"

"Why have they championed the cause of despotism and denounced that of liberty?"

"Why have they degraded and enslaved womankind?"

"And all this in thy name!"

"Oh, God, we beseech thee to so influence men that the benefactors of the race will be glorified and not crucified—that reason, unfeeling, may walk the earth, that temples of worship will welcome honest and intelligent thought, that character may count far more than belief, that the human palm will reject the sword for the laurel branch of peace, that love may be the golden key unlocking all the gates of joy, that woman will be liberated, each man receive what he earns, and all come to know that the rights of one are the rights of all, that wars and tyrannies and persecutions are robberies, and hypocrites may not prevail, in thy name.

"Oh, God, we now approach the province which is wholly governed by thy will. And we implore thee either to stop producing deadly microbes, tornadoes, earthquakes and volcanoes (they torture and kill one-quarter of the people on the earth before the age of six, one-half before the age of sixteen and two-thirds before the passing from youth into complete manhood and womanhood, and inflict upon the lower species

DON'T BE BALD.

Nearly Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair.

We have a remedy that has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 93 out of every 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store—James H. Williams, 214 Main St.

and animals agony and abbreviated life beyond computation), or to repeal the law, that thy creatures shall multiply and replenish the earth.

"Oh, God, all classes and conditions of society have begun to ponder:

"How can it be the world was planned.

With wretchedness on every hand, By a Power wise and good? For clear it seems to human eyes, That wisdom could plan otherwise, And goodness surely would.

"And we pray that when Judgment Day arrives man may not claim he should be the judge and thou the one adjudged.

"In a spirit of reverence and humility and love, we place all this before thee, oh, God—if thou art God."

Whether each agnostic is to hurl this prayer but once and then abstain, or whether the cross-examination of the Creator is to be a recurrent ceremony in the life of the doubter, is not stated.

LOOK FORWARD.

Do not tell your troubles this year, because the fewer people who know of the things that have handicapped you, the better it is for you. You will then be spared the influence of the unfortunate suggestions which your hard luck stories make upon other people's minds.

Then, again, every time you repeat the story of your misfortunes, your troubles, your trials, your failures, you etch the dark picture a little deeper in your own mind; make a little more real to yourself what you ought to erase forever. What cannot help us, what can only hinder, should be forgotten, discarded once for all.

Many people hang on to their old troubles; they cling to their old sorrows and misfortunes, their failures, their past sufferings, until they become a terrible drag, a clog, a fearful handicap to their progress.

The only thing to do with a bad piece of work, with an unfortunate mistake, with a sad experience, is to let it go, wipe it out, get rid of it forever. Never allow the hideous image to come into your presence again or mar your happiness or sap your strength.

There is so much had in the best of us, and so much good in the worst of us, that it hardly behooves any of us to talk about the rest of us.

Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey is a household word in every State in the Union as well as in several foreign countries. For grip, coughs, colds, asthma and throat troubles it is the best. Sold everywhere. Look for the Bell on the bottle.

Lippincott's and the New Year. Lippincott's Magazine wastes no time in beginning to fulfil its promises of good things to come during 1911. The January issue opens with a thoroughly delightful complete novelette entitled "Lista," by Zona Gale, famous for "The Loves of Pelleas and Etarre," "Friendship Village Love Stories," and other wonderful books. "Lista" is a tale of rural Wisconsin, a section hitherto virtually unexploited in fiction. The heroine is a farmer's daughter, who has some surprising experiences, in which are also concerned a man (of course,) "Lista's" little sister, no less a personage than the Mayor of the town, the Mayor's daughter, and some city folk.

Millions of Bottles Of Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey used annually is good evidence that it is a good remedy for la grippe, coughs, colds and all throat and bronchial troubles. Look for the Bell on the bottle. Sold everywhere.

A SETTLEMENT WITH THE SWEDISH FARMER

Up in Minnesota Mr. Olsen had a cow killed by a railroad train. In due season the claim agent for the railroad called. "We understand, of course, that the deceased was a very docile and valuable animal," said the claim agent in his most persuasive, calm, claim-agently manner, "and we sympathize with you and your family in your loss. But, Mr. Olsen, you must remember this: Your cow had no business being upon our tracks. Those tracks are our private property and when she invaded them she became a trespasser. Technically speaking, you as her owner, became a trespasser also. But we have no desire to carry the issue into court and possibly give you trouble. Now, then, what would you regard as a fair settlement between you and the railroad company?" "Vall," said Mr. Olsen, slowly, "Ay bane poor Swede farmer, but Ay shall give you two dollars."—[San Francisco Argonaut.

POEMS YOU'LL ENJOY.

ENDURANCE.

How much the heart may bear and yet not break! How much the flesh may suffer and not die! I question much if any pain or ache Of soul or body brings our end more nigh.

Death chooses his own time; till that is come All evils may be borne.

We shrink and shudder at the surgeon's knife, Each nerve recoiling from the cruel steel

Whose edge seems searching for the quivering life; Yet to our sense the bitterest pangs reveal

That still, although the trembling flesh he torn, This also may be borne.

We see a sorrow rising in our way, And try to flee from the approaching ill;

We seek some small escape—we seek and pray; But when the blow falls, then our hearts are still—

Not that the pain is of its sharpness shorn, But that it can be borne.

We wind our life about another's life, We hold it closer—dearer than our own;

And when it faints and falls in deadly strife— Leaving us stunned and stricken and alone;

But ah—we do not die with those we mourn— This also can be borne.

Behold, we live through all things—famine, thirst, Bereavement, pain—all grief and misery—

All woe—and sorrow—life inflicts its worst

On soul and body, but we cannot die, Though we be sick and tired and faint and worn—

Lo! All things can be borne. —[Elizabeth Ahern Allen.

MAN WILL FREEZE TO DEATH IN LAST DAYS

Washington, Dec. 31.—The earth is slowly cooling and man will freeze, not starve, to death in the distant future, according to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture, who forecast the subject of germs and pure foods long enough to address the Secular League here.

However, he added, there will be fuel for at least another million years.

"In the future," he said further, "the air will furnish heat, fuel and power, and companies will be formed for utilizing it. This is not a theory, but an actuality of the future based upon actual conditions and natural laws."

A Reliable Cough Medicine is a valuable family friend. Foley's Honey and Tar fulfils this condition exactly. Mrs. Charles Kline, N. 8th St., Easton, Pa., states: "Several members of my family have been cured of bad coughs and colds by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar and I am never without a bottle in the house. It soothes and relieves the irritation in the throat and loosens up the cold. I have always found it a reliable cough cure and do not hesitate to recommend it highly." For la grippe, coughs and stuffy colds, for children and grown persons and for delicate people, use only Foley's Honey and Tar. Contains no opiates. For sale by all druggists.

Puzzling Conduct. Little Girl—Mother, is Uncle John deaf?

Mother—No, dear. Why? Little Girl—Every time he gives me five cents he says, "What do you say?" and I'm never saying a word.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.

MINT JULEP ROMANCE AND HOW IT ENDED

Thus the story runs in the Barbour family: In the olden days, when the trip to Kentucky was made astride a horse, with a pair of saddle bags, in one side a change of clothing, in the other a quart of good old Virginia whisky, former Governor Barbour was making his way through Cumberland Gap to Kentucky. Nearing a small inn, he found a bed of mint. Gathering a generous quantity he took it with him to the inn, where he spent Sunday, and thus introduced to the innkeeper and family the Virginia mint julep.

A few years later, on taking the same trip, he made it a point to make the same inn to spend Sunday. Much to his surprise he was met by an entire stranger. At once he asked for his old friends.

"Well," said the stranger, "a few years ago a fool Virginian came through here and taught them folks how to mix a drink out of weeds. Now they are all planted on the hill yonder."—[Richmond Times Dispatch.

A BACHELOR GIRL'S REFLECTIONS.

A girl never casts her bread upon the waters without the fervid hope it will return to her in the form of wedding cake.

A husband is a necessity, not a luxury. You can live without injuries, but a necessity is something which you must have around the house.

It's a poor wife who can't put up a good, solid bluff at devotion in return for her board, clothes and lodging.

Astonishing how many rich widows are willing to pay cash in advance for cheap sentiment or imitation love from good-looking adventurers nowadays!

A woman can forgive her husband for calling her names in private if he will only call her "dearie" by mistake in public once in a while.

You'd fancy that a marriage certificate was a declaration of independence from the way in which some people act after they have signed it.

No wonder matrimony is a mercurial affair, since most married couples are smothering each other with kisses one moment and with a wet blanket of sarcasm the next.

A man doesn't mind posing as a "neglected husband". It makes other women sympathize with him so!—[By Helen Rowland in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

OLDEST MAIL CARRIER AND HIS FALSE TEETH

Elizabethtown, Ky., Dec. 30.—In the neighboring county of Hart resides a man that claims the distinction of being the oldest mail carrier in the United States, and now he asks the Government to retire him on a pension. This man is Frank Forbis, who is ninety years of age, and has been carrying the mail from Munfordville to Cub Run, a distance of fifteen miles, daily for so long that the memory of no man in that district runneth to the contrary.

"Uncle" Frank has lost only three teeth and has worn false teeth made out of seasoned hickory. They are cut by him so as to fit about the other teeth. They last for several years and when they wear out, he makes others. The aged carrier filed his application for a pension a few days ago.

His Untimely Death.

"He died at the untimely age of eighty-five."

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Hartford Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad cold removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Hartford readers.

William Johnson, Cloverport, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills in my case proved to be a very reliable remedy and consequently I have no hesitation in recommending them. For six years my kidneys were disordered, the secretions being too frequent in passage and when allowed to stand, depositing sediment. My back ached severely, particularly at night, and in the morning I was so lame and sore that I could scarcely get around. Whenever I contracted the slightest cold, it settled in my kidneys and made my suffering more intense. Doan's Kidney Pills have given me great relief from these troubles."

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write daily to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

TRUTHFUL VOICE OF WARNING

Which Speaks for Better
Things In States
Development.

SOME FACTS PLAINLY STATED

The Louisville Times of Friday
says:

The time was—and it was not so long ago either—that the newspaper or the public speaker that didn't begin and end a deliverance on Kentucky with undigested praise of its virtues and a spread-eagle refusal to admit the existence either of its needs or shortcomings, was set down as an enemy of the State.

Yesterday afternoon, Harry Sommers, a veteran newspaper man and a speaker who always commands a hearing, made the principal address at the first session of the Good Roads Congress. These were his opening paragraphs:

"It is evident that in Kentucky we have done those things which we ought not to have done and left undone those things which we should have done. Between our political feuds, our blood feuds in the mountains and our tobacco feuds in Central and Western Kentucky, we have repelled both capital and immigration from our borders.

"We have neglected the education of our children until illiteracy is a reproach to the State. We have left comparatively untouched the great wealth which the Creator stored in the bowels of our mountains. We have shipped out our splendid timber to be manufactured in other States, instead of manufacturing it at home. We have legislated against the railroads, those great pioneers of progress and development, instead of encouraging them to extend their lines. As a result of all this, the census figures show that only three States in the Union have a smaller percentage of growth than Kentucky. Is it not time to turn over a new leaf just before the New Year and use to the fullest extent the great advantages which nature has laid at our feet and which opportunity has brought to our door?"

And his audience applauded him. The applause was given because Mr. Sommers' hearers recognized that he had the courage to speak truths and truths with which Kentuckians have to grapple.

In the same building and almost at the same hour, Col. Green R. Keller, another veteran of the press, was urging his audience, made up exclusively of Kentucky editors, to use their power for the election to the next General Assembly of men broad enough to forget county and legislative boundaries in dealing with questions that affect the State.

To the Times' way of thinking, these two incidents have more than a passing significance. They spell the beginning of the end of the self-satisfaction which has caused Kentucky to ignore facts. They were prompted by no desire to advertise our weaknesses as a State and people, but by a patriotic purpose to make clear the evils to the end that they may be remedied. They bear witness of an intelligent discontent

The younger a girl the better she gets along with her mother.

If you want your wish to come true, you have to help it along.

It is easier to get $10 in promises than it is to get 50 cents in money.

A man never becomes so big a fool that he cannot become a bigger one. In their efforts to get rich some men never get beyond a house and lot.

Every time you look at a twelve-year-old boy he needs a new pair of shoes.

You can make an intelligent guess at anything except a badly written name.

A widower in town can boast, but a widower in the country must get married.

Some men are so constituted that they get a lot of fun out of being downtrodden.

Men do seem to do more courting in every succeeding generation and less marrying.

There never was a girl so beautiful that she could look slouchy to a good advantage.

When a man is going to ask you for a favor the first thing he does is to shake your hand.

A man never brags as much about his wife's piano playing as he does about her cooking.

People are very much alike, except that a few nice ones do less talking than the others.

Why don't some of the married women look as pretty as the widows? What's to hinder?

One thing the matter with your health is that you didn't begin to take care of it until you had to.

Vanity is a bad habit, but every one should have enough of it to keep his teeth and finger nails clean.

There are a lot of men who can't look for anything better from public opinion than something like a hung jury.

When a dog has no more than he wants to eat himself, the arrival of dog company always results in a fight.

When you get through with your work, for heaven's sake go off and rest; don't bother the man who is still busy.

A woman always tells her lover that she wishes she could bear all his aches and pains; because she knows she can't.

Always remember that if a man knows where he can make a dollar he will not tell you about it; he will go after it himself.

A man who has been sick a long time said to-day: "There's a whole lot in the statement that doctors practice medicine."

The men who make money are the men who make a town. No town prospers where it is a sin to make more than two dollars a day.

After a bride and groom return from their wedding trip, they attract no more attention than an exploded fire cracker the morning after the Fourth of July.

Children are punished by scolding them or by whipping them. But after they become men and women they are punished by gossiping about them.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. It suited my case as though made just for me."

THE JAPS PLOT TO PLANT MINES

In Manila Bay in Case of War With Us.

DASTARDLY GAME REVEALED

Unlighted Jap Ship Been Making Mysterious Movements by Night.

A SPY ARRESTED SKETCHING

Manila, Dec. 30.—Particulars of what is regarded by the army and navy officials to have been a plot on the part of the Japanese to plant mines in Manila harbor, leaked out here to-day.

It is believed that the mines were to be placed in the naval anchorage and anchored securely close to the bottom of the harbor, wires from them leading ashore and concealed, ready to have the batteries attached, so that they could be exploded in the event of war between Japan and the United States.

That the situation is serious is privately admitted by the officials who are familiar with the developments of the last few days, which resulted in a rigid search in the Japanese quarter and the discovery of explosives that had been carefully concealed there.

These explosives are of the kind which were used with such success in the Japanese-Russo war.

It was reported that an unlighted ship with three Japanese had been noticed by the sentries on the harbor fortifications, moving about for several nights. It put in its appearance only on dark nights.

It is believed by the officers who are familiar with the situation that this vessel was making soundings and a map of the harbor and was seeking the best spot in which to place the mines.

That a Japanese spy was arrested yesterday on Corrigidor Island sketching the fortifications, was admitted to-day at the army headquarters. The Japanese was dressed as a laborer and was taken to the guard house and searched. An almost complete plan of the fortification with data of the gun mounting and a bundle of private papers, the nature of which has not been disclosed, were found on him and confiscated. Acute Interest in Military Circles.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Acute interest was taken in military circles here to-day in the reported discovery of a Japanese plot to place mines in the Manila harbor, although the higher war department officials deny that any official advice have been received.

Major General Wood expressed the opinion that the searching of the Japanese houses was probably done by civil authorities, as the law prohibiting firearms and explosives is most rigid.

About the clubs, where many American officers talked, unofficial men who have served in the Philippines, declare that the Japanese have been secretly at work in Manila and the Philippines for several years.

MODEL MINING TOWN BUILDING IN VIRGINIA

A model mining town is being built in Marion county, W. Va., by the Annabelle Coal and Coke Company, which has begun the development of 7,000 acres of fine coal land and which is building a modern mining plant.

It is claimed that the town, which is called Annabelle, will be the model mining town of the world, and when ready for occupancy will have 4,000 inhabitants. Annabelle will be different from the usual mining towns of the coal regions in that it will have all the modern conveniences that go to make up metropolitan towns.

The homes will all be of brick, plumbed for water, gas and electric lights. Each house will be equipped with bath tubs and shower baths. Around each house there will be plenty of space for lawns and gardens, and the company will pay close attention to the planting of shade trees.

The sanitary conditions of the town will be taken care of by a modern water works sewerage system and sewerage disposal plant, which will be installed at a cost of $50,000. A three-story brick building will be erected at a cost of $40,000 for an ammuement hall.

HAS RETURNED TO HIS OLD WINTER QUARTERS

Moss Served More Time for Crime Than Any Person in Country.

The Owensboro Inquirer says: Moses Williams, colored, who has served possibly more combined sentences in the city workhouse and county jail than any one person in the United States, is determined to leave his winter quarters in Jailer Calhoun's castle, having received a sentence from Judge Owen of six months for petit larceny. Moss is an old timer and has been in the city court on many occasions and on various charges. He spends most of his time in the workhouse, and when not at that place, his post-office address is at the county jail. Moss is familiar with the law, and he knows that he must steal as much as $30 worth of property before the court can send him to the penitentiary, except in cases of stealing chickens, and the latter he is afraid to undertake, knowing that he would take a trip to Eddyville sure. Moss avoids the penitentiary, but has no fears of a jail, nor of the length of punishment in this castle. His latest escapade is when he stole two blankets from M. H. Enright, worth about $10, and was arrested, charged with petit larceny. On a plea of guilty, he was held to the grand jury by Judge Haskins, and on a final hearing before Judge Owen, he was given a sentence that will last until the approach of the harvest days.

THEIR ENGAGEMENT.

He Told Her She Would Return to Him, and She Did.

She entered the room hastily. He was waiting her. "I was afraid you would be thinking I had forgotten," she said. "No," he responded calmly, in the tone of one who is master of himself. "An engagement is an engagement with me." She was a beautiful girl. A wealth of chestnut hair rippled below the wide brim of her bonnet. Her close fitting tailored gown yielded to every movement of her supple form. He was a bit above the average height, a clean cut, square-chinned chap, whose every expression bespoke self reliance. As he looked at her his glance was deferential, yet not timid. "It has been a long while since we saw each other," he remarked. "Yes, nearly a year," she replied. "But do you remember when I left that time you said I would have to come back?" "Yes, You should have come sooner than this." "But I have been so busy—going and coming, dances, dinners, the theater and all." "I know. And you were married too?" His voice did not tremble as he asked this, yet across her face there flashed a quick tinge of humiliation. "I—I would rather not speak of that," she observed, almost coldly. "That is all over. We—we—it was to be expected. The truth is we were not meant for each other. So I—I got a divorce." "It was better so, no doubt," he responded gently. "Won't you sit down?" She took the chair he indicated, and as he looked down at her she flashed him a sudden smile. "I was afraid of you the last time," she said merrily. "But you are not afraid now?" His voice seemed to give her assurance. She smiled again. "No, indeed!" He put his fingers beneath her dimpled chin and tilted her bonny head back, then gazed at her earnestly. Her limpid eyes looked up at him trustfully. The rose pink of her cheeks came and went fitfully. The white of her throat throbbled with each breath. He bent nearer to her, still with that fixed gaze. Her lips were parted.

He raised his head, and she looked out of the window silently. There was a pause. At last she spoke. "What are you studying about? What have you decided?" "I think I'll have to fill two of your teeth," he said quietly. "The rest are all right. You have taken better care of them than most women do."—Life.

Grand, Gloomy and Peculiar.

There was a marked contrast between Lincoln's manner, which was always pleasant and even genial, and that of Stanton. The latter's stern, spectacled visage commanded instant respect and in many cases inspired fear. In receiving visitors, and they were legion, Stanton seldom or never sat down, but stood before a high desk as the crowd passed before him and one by one presented their requests or complaints, which were rapidly disposed of. He was baughty, severe, domineering and often rude. When I think of him in the daily routine of his public audiences the characterization of Napoleon by Charles Phillips, the Irish orator, comes to mind, "grand, gloomy and peculiar."—From "Lincoln in the Telegraph Office."

Eugenie's American Ancestry.

The Empress Eugenie was the granddaughter of Mr. Fitzpatrick, American consul at Malaga during the early years of the nineteenth century. Mr. Fitzpatrick's wife was of Scotch descent and claimed to be connected in some remote way with the Sturges. They had one daughter, a very beautiful and accomplished girl, who made a brilliant marriage with the Marquis De Montijo, Comte De Teba. He died after a few years of married life, leaving her with two young daughters, one of whom subsequently married the Duke of Alba. The other, Eugenie, became empress of the French.—From the Memoirs of M. Claude.

Birds of a Feather.

Frederick Leveson-Gower in his reminiscences relates that when he visited Moscow in 1850 for the coronation of Alexander II, "opposite our house during the procession was drawn up a regiment called Paulovski, formed by the Emperor Paul, all the men having turned up noses and therefore resembling him. It seems it was the fashion to compose regiments of men all having the same features. The late emperor had recruits sent to him and told them off according to their looks. There is one regiment of men all marked with the smallpox."

Why the Statue Kept Mum.

The Venus of Milo refused to tell how she lost her arms. "If I should say I broke them off while trying to button my dress up the back," she said, "you'd ask me what has become of the dress." Relapsing into stony silence, she paid no further attention to the questioners.—Chicago Tribune.

A Girl's Idea.

A girl's idea of a trousseau is to have enough clothes to wear without buying anything new for at least three weeks.—New York Times.

He is a friend who in dubious circumstances aids in deeds when deeds are necessary.—Plantus.

STAGE REALISM.

Clara Morris' Study of a Victim of Heart Disease.

No actress ever surpassed Clara Morris in the care with which she studied for a part. When she was studying the part of Cora in "Article 47" she visited an insane asylum in order to learn the signs of insanity. Cora was not only insane, but she was disfigured by a hideous scar as well. Miss Morris spent weeks in trying to secure a correct representation, and one day she saw in a street car a woman who had exactly that kind of disfigurement. She studied it and reproduced it, but her kindness of heart shrank from reproducing it in such fashion that the sufferer might recognize it if she ever saw the play. So she worked over it until she made enough alterations to feel certain that no one, not even the owner of the original scar, could ever suspect the imitation. When she was studying the part of Miss Moulton, who was to die of heart disease, she visited a specialist who had a number of patients suffering from that trouble. He showed her one of his patients and then, to her surprise and horror, ran the sufferer up a flight of stairs that Miss Morris might see the symptoms as produced after an excitement of the heart. Miss Morris was filled with pain and pity. She made the poor patient a present of a bank bill as she was leaving. The woman accepted it and then as she was stuffing it into her glove caught sight of the figure on the note. The size was so large that it brought on a recurrence of all the symptoms—the starting eyes, the gasping breath, the widening nostrils. This time the heart excitement was caused by joy, not pain, but Miss Morris was so overcome with horror and sympathy that she hurriedly left the house.—Ladies' Home Journal.

HIS FIRST WIG.

John D. Rockefeller Was Timid About Wearing It in Public.

When John D. Rockefeller first donned a wig he was apparently somewhat timid about showing himself with it in public. H. M. Briggs, who was for a number of years very closely connected with Mr. Rockefeller as his personal bodyguard, writes in the American Magazine of the oil king's debut in his new hairdo: "One morning Mr. Rockefeller came to church in a wig for the first time. As he arrived some time before the services very few were present. Dr. Eaton, the pastor of the church, laughingly said, 'Mr. Rockefeller, we love you with or without it.' I went with him into the Sunday school, and we passed a reporter, who did not recognize him. I told Mr. Rockefeller of this, and he said, 'You surprise me.' He inquired if there was a mirror in the church, and I took him into Dr. Eaton's office. He stood in front of the glass, and finally getting it adjusted, he asked me if it looked all right. I asked him if it was comfortable. I really did think the wig made a great improvement in his appearance. He said that it was going to be quite an ordeal to enter the church for the service. I said, 'Mr. Rockefeller, you have gone through worse.' He shrugged his shoulders, and we passed into the church together. If his presence on previous occasions never failed to attract attention the stir that followed his entrance on this particular morning must be left to the imagination. After the service, when the 'ordeal' was over, he seemed as tickled with his wig as a boy with a new pair of red topped boots."

Pirate's Coin.

The doubloon, that famous coin of romance, is still in circulation. The Isabella doubloon, worth $5, still remains current in Cuba. The doubloon is so called because when first coined it was double the value of a pistole—that is, it was worth $8. The name was given later to a double doubloon current in the West Indies. Pieces of eight, with which every reader of "Robinson Crusoe" is familiar, are also in circulation. They are simply Spanish dollars of eight reals. A doubloon dated 1787—there are said to be only six of that date in existence—sold a year or six ago for $6,200.—New York Press.

A Condition, Not a Theory.

A sociologist in conversation with a practical person from the middle west concerning the labor problem in her part of the country thereby learned the lesson of the situation. "Are there many men out of work?" he asked. The lady admitted that there were quite a number. "What," said he then, "do the unemployed do?" "Nothing," said the lady. "That's the trouble."—Youth's Companion.

His Only Hope.

A lawyer of New Orleans tells this story: An old negro was brought up before the judge charged with chicken stealing, and when the usual question was propounded, "Guilty or not guilty?" he said, "I don't know, boss; I jest throw myself on the ignorance of the court."—Case and Comment.

Her Title.

"He married her for her title." "You mean the other way about, don't you?" "No; her title to a lot of valuable real estate."—Boston Transcript.

A Pretzel.

"Paw, what's a pretzel?" "A cracker with cramps, my son. Now go to bed."—St. Joseph News Press.
